

NALCP Announcement – October 28, 2018

The National Association of Licensing & Compliance Professionals (“NALCP”) is pleased to announce the appointment of its first Executive Director, Jill Valachovic. The organization made the announcement on October 4, 2018 at the 13th Annual NALCP Conference, in Nashville. Jill’s role as Executive Director will be effective January 1, 2019.

Jill served as President of NALCP from 2014 to 2017, and currently holds the title of Director. She will continue in this role through December 2018. Her previous roles with NALCP include President-Elect (2013) and Membership Chairman (2010-2012).

Starting in January 2019, while working as NALCP’s Executive Director, Jill will continue to work part-time as Dave & Buster’s Senior Paralegal. She joined Dave & Buster’s in 2006, mere months before the inaugural NALCP conference in Austin that same year.

Portia Bagby, President of NALCP, said “the Officers and Directors are thrilled to start this chapter of NALCP, and we are even more excited that Jill will be taking this on! We need dedicated focus and continuity to accomplish goals which will not only reinforce NALCP’s mission but provide additional value to our Membership. Naturally, it makes sense that it’s someone who has been here from the start. Jill’s passion for this organization, combined with her knowledge of the industry, make her ideal for this role.”

According to Portia, during a two-day NALCP Officer & Director retreat several years ago, the Executive Director Role initiative was added to the organization’s strategic planning process. Since that retreat, and over the past 13 years, NALCP has done a tremendous job advancing the organization, with an all-volunteer team, and it’s finally time to take this extra step.

With that said, Jill’s contributions to NALCP, her past experiences in non-profit work, and her adeptness for the issues that affect the retail industry, more than qualify her to take on this new role. Congratulations to Jill!
